7. DESCRIPTION-1153

The Chambers barn is located on Beaver Dam Road in Chesapeake Beach Maryland. Beaver Dam Road is an isolated road, that curves drastically and runs through extremely steep topography. The barn is located near the end of the road, at the bottom of the ravine into which the road descends. The barn was recorded from the exterior, as permission to enter the barn was not granted by the owners.

The barn is situated immediately adjacent to the road, and is oriented on a north-south axis. The barn measures thirty-two by twenty feet, and has sheds on all four sides. The north, east, and south sheds are each ten feet wide, and the west shed is twelve feet wide. There are doors centered along the sheds on both the north and south gables, and there is one door in the northeast of the east shed, and one in the southwest corner of the south shed. There are shingle nailers visible underneath the metal roof, indicating that the roof was once shingled. All of the siding is vertical, and there are no visible ventilation doors. The timbers are hewn, and peeled logs serve for tier poles. The roof is of an extremely steep pitch.

8. SIGNIFICANCE CT-1153

The steep pitch of the roof, shingle nailers, and visible hewn timbers, all combine to indicate that the Chambers barn is an early nineteenth century barn. This is not certain, however, since no internal inspection was possible. The thirty-two by twenty foot measurements are somewhat unusual. In addition to its apparent age, this barn is significant as one of the few remaining tobacco barns encountered in the area of Chesapeake Beach. The area has been intensively developed, and this, in combination with the steep topography, serve to explain the relatively few tobacco barns recorded in the area. It is possible that less tobacco was grown here. However, it may be simply that the area has been developed, and the remaining barns are not visible from the road due to the topography.

This barn also yields information regarding agricultural history in Southern Maryland. In February 1990, a tobacco barn survey was initiated in order to study the tobacco barns of Calvert County. Until fairly recently, tobacco was the most important farm crop of the county. More acreage was devoted to its cultivation than for both of the next most extensive farm products (corn and wheat). The barns and stripping houses related to this "Tobacco Culture" are widely recognized as the most common element on the rural landscape. These structures are also the most threatened, as the market for tobacco declines. They seem to have, at present, only limited capabilities for re-use. Many barns and stripping houses now stand empty. The purpose of this survey has been to gather information and document a wide sample of these structures before they disappear from the landscape.
